The Mates Inn is a Culinary Arts vocational program offered to incarcerated individuals by the Education Department of the Garden State Correctional Facility. Full-minimum custody students are bussed daily to the Mates Inn, where they maintain and run the full-service restaurant --open to the public-- with the guidance of a professionally trained staff that has many years of industry experience. The program showcases the commitment of the New Jersey Department of Corrections (NJDOC) to education as an integral facet of rehabilitation.

Through the NJDOC's relationship with the Burlington County Institute of Technology (BCIT), Mates Inn students are able to earn a BCIT Culinary Arts Certificate. Students also participate in the National Restaurant Association's ServSafe Certification classes. Mates Inn teachers are also certified ServSafe instructors; this enables the students to pursue a five-year national food safety certificate from the National Restaurant Association.

The Mates Inn serves breakfast and lunch, Monday through Friday, and also provides catering for large and small parties.

Customer comments and suggestions are appreciated, as your feedback will help the students, as well as the program, continue to improve.

When first visiting the Mates Inn, please ask a staff member for assistance in introducing you to the restaurant's cashless Debitec payment system.

Please enjoy your food, and thank you for helping us make a difference.
